The 3 Key themes for Mines and Money 2017

EXPLORATION

- With grades declining in many sectors, coupled with many industries having past peak production, what are the exploration business models that will reinvigorate and drive success and growth in the new mining life cycle?
- Examining new thinking and approaches to exploration from majors and mid-tiers to meet changing global energy demands. Exploration or acquisition?
- Financing the future exploration growth and development of the mining industry - where is the money coming from? Debt? Equity? Private equity? Royalties & streaming? Prospector – Generator business models?
- Determining the best investment opportunities in the junior mining sector

INNOVATION

- Innovations in finance and deal-making- the rise royalty and streaming business models. M&A trends
- Capitalising on the Electric Vehicle and Transport as a Service (TaaS) revolution – where are the real wins for the mining industry?
- Overcoming challenges to drive innovation in the mining industry – how does the industry need to rethink the way it approaches technology?

COLLABORATION

- What lessons can the mining industry learn from the other sectors (oil & gas, retail) about driving exploration and innovation?
- Understanding the key criteria for developing collaborative partnerships in mining to mitigate risk when investing in emerging markets

Mines and Money London 2017 gives you:

MORE: Thought leadership from the leading players: Anglo American, Agnico Eagle, Antofagasta, Barrick Gold, Evolution Mining, Goldfields, Randgold, Rio Tinto, Sibanye, Zhaojin, and Zijin Mining all confirmed

MORE: Big hitting speakers including Nigel Farage on Brexit and Trump, Robert Friedland on metals in a green environment and Peter Grosskopf on gold as an investment

MORE: Miners speaking, exhibiting and attending than any other event in Europe. In 2016, we welcomed over 87 mining companies who exhibited. In 2017, we are expecting over 100. There are also 900 miners attending.

MORE: Debate and discussion on the key issues impacting the industry. Over 200 speakers including over 70 mines and 70 investors in 4 information packed days.

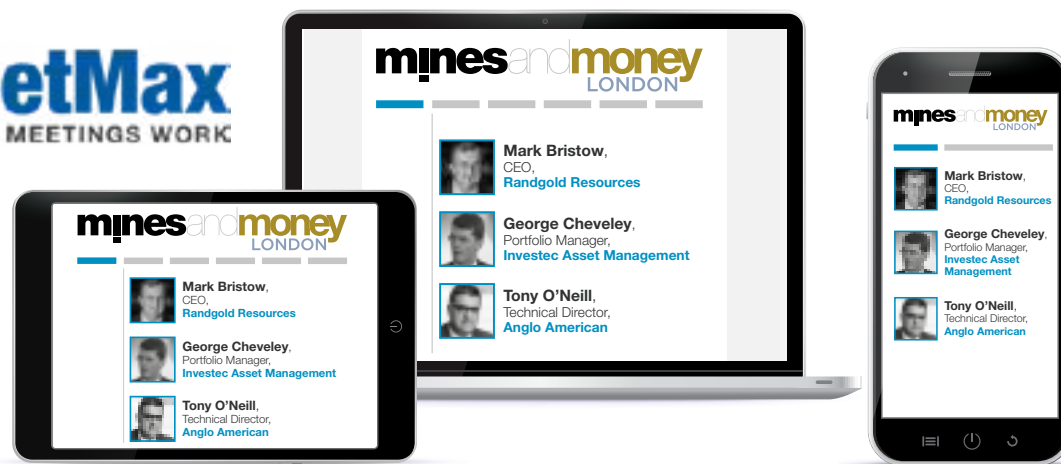

MORE: Institutional investors and retail investors. Each of our investors is qualified and accepted only on the basis that they have AUM, have a propensity to invest in mining, and are willing to commit to a minimum of 5 meetings with miners

MINING COMPANY

WHO YOU WILL MEET

- Equity Fund Managers
- Private Equity
- HNWIIs and Family Offices
- Hedge Funds
- Sovereign Wealth Funds
- Endowment Funds
- Retail Investors
- Pension Funds
- Offtake Providers (Traders, Smelters and Refiners)

THE MINES AND MONEY ADVANTAGE

- Set up meetings through the Mines and Money meeting planner
- It's the 'one stop shop' to access capital in Europe and get deals
- Having trouble deciding which investors you should be targeting? Take advantage of our Investor Relations team

Being a centre of mining finance, London attracts a lot of specialist natural resource fund managers as well as private equity players.

The investors are global in their attendance: London, Zurich, Geneva, Hong Kong, Sydney, Paris, Capetown – in 2016 our investors came from 27 different countries.

BENEFITS

- Secure funding for your project
- Explore key innovation technologies
- Hear successful case studies from leading majors and mid tiers

There are also many hedge funds and other investors that attend who are attracted to investing in the underlying commodity as opposed to the mining company.

London is also viewed as being the centre of African mining finance, with many miners looking to London as opposed to Capetown or Johannesburg for investment.

Conference Highlights Monday 27 November – Gold Summit

Conference Highlights Tuesday 28 November

Evy Hambro,
Managing Director and Chief Investment
Officer, Natural Resources Equity Team,
Incrementum and Author of In Gold
We Trust

Evy is recognised as the world's leading natural resources fund manager. Where his funds invest have a large bearing on what projects get built, and which projects sit on the sidelines.

In this wide ranging interview, Evy will give his market outlook on the state of the markets, and what he is looking for from the mining industry in 2018.

Mark Bristow,
CEO,
Randgold Resources

Sean Boyd,
CEO,
Agnico Eagle

It is generally accepted that the mining industry has been underinvesting in exploration over the last 20 years. So, what can be done? In this panel, we bring together leading mining CEOs to discuss their vision for exploration in the mining industry and how they are facing this challenge

Monday 27th November - Africa Summit

WITWATERSRAND THEATRE

On one hand Africa offers excellent opportunities for mining, being one of the few continents with a positive ROI for exploration. Mining is also critical for many African countries, constituting up to 70% of GDP. Many African countries have taken a proactive approach to attracting inward mining investment. However, risk is still prevalent in many jurisdictions, as demonstrated by recent developments in South Africa and Tanzania. New for 2017, our Africa Summit provides a comprehensive snapshot of the risks and rewards in African mining.

Mining Company spotlight presentations

Mines and Money is all about deal-making. Critical to this is connecting junior mining companies with exciting projects with potential investors.

An integral part of Mines and Money are our spotlights, where each mining company gets a 10-minute opportunity to pitch to investors who have specifically asked us to follow the below key themes:

What is the stage of the project?

Where is it?

What are you mining?

What financing are you looking for?

What are the upsides to the project?

What are the risks involved?

What is your management vision for the business?

About your Awards host – Geoff Miller OBE

A hugely respected figure in the world of cricket both through his time playing the game and his responsibilities afterwards, it's hard to argue that there's a man who knows more about the game.

A former England test stalwart, the first National Selector of the ECB and most recently President of Derbyshire County Cricket Club, throughout his life and career, Geoff has always maintained an active interest in one of our country's most loved sports.

Following his retirement, Geoff has established himself as a highly entertaining after dinner speaker with tales from his time playing with the likes of Sir Ian Botham and his vast knowledge of the game entertaining the crowds at corporate events and sportsman's dinners up and down the UK.

With the Ashes starting on 22 November, Geoff Miller's speech promises to be entertaining, especially as the Australians will be 1-0 down by then!

Mines and Technology 27 to 30 November 2017

Co-located with Mines and Money London

Mines and Technology in London will be addressing the most critical areas in the technology revolution which are maximising operational gains. Mid-tier and major mining companies will share their innovation strategies and discuss how automation, drones, mobile applications, mine-planning software, 3D mapping, data analytics and alike are enhancing productivity and streamlining costs.

Top speakers

- Tony O'Neill, Technical Director, Anglo American
- Andrew Scott, Senior Director – Innovation, Barrick Gold
- Burcin Ozturk, Principal Asset Planning, Global, BHP Billiton
- Greg Harmandayan, CEO, Harmang Systems and IM Project Manager, DeBeers Group
- Nicholas Holland, CEO, Goldfields

Key Themes

Automation and robotics: More and more mine operations are using advanced automation solutions to significantly increase productivity and safety, as well as lower the total cost of ownership.

Mineral processing: With up to 50% of the total energy used in a mining operation coming from comminution, there are great environmental and cost benefits associated with the development of mineral processing innovations and technology to streamline the process.

The impact of innovation on the business of mining: Innovation and technology is challenging the culture, mindset and business processes in leading mid-tiers and majors and this disruption can lead to a change whereby mining companies are more open and embracing to new technologies.

Big data and industrial IOT: Mining companies are more and more exploring the benefits of data analytics to positively impact their bottom line, resulting in growing revenues and greater efficiency in across operations.

“There were many highlights, one to one meetings, to roundtable discussions, panel discussions and the gala night and networking”

Feroz Ashraf, CEO, Uranium One
